

Carroll Group Modern Slavery Act 2015 and Human Trafficking Compliance Statement

Statement of Intent

All entities within the Carroll Group are committed to promoting the highest standards of ethical business practice from our recruitment and employment activities through to the behaviours and procedural arrangements we expect from our supply chain partners.

This includes being vigilant to the human suffering caused by those involved in acts of modern slavery and human trafficking activities. We welcome the increased emphasis and need for positive action that the Modern Slavery Act brings to all the parts of our Group structure and those with whom we choose to do business.

Our aim is for continuous improvement in this area and we will build on our existing strong emphasis on promoting employee welfare, stringent selection procedures and monitoring of our supply chain, through to our zero tolerance stance for any form of discrimination or Human Rights breaches.

The Carroll Group Business Activities

The Group current business activities include construction (i.e. new build and refurbishment), asbestos management, scaffolding and waste management specialising in both domestic and trade solutions.

Our Supply Chain Management Arrangements

Any supplier or sub-contractor that we choose to work with is subject to a comprehensive assessment process prior to their appointment, to ensure their operations are in line with our ethical business standards. This includes:

- Disbarring any company from the approved supplier list for any prosecutions or judgements for breaches of the Public Contracts Regulations 2015, Equality Act 2010, Human Rights Act 1998 or any court or industrial tribunal, including modern slavery or trafficking offences
- Ensuring companies have equality, diversity and inclusion Policies in place including employee monitoring or are willing to work towards similar Sovini Policies.

Once approved, suppliers and sub-contractors are subject to regular monitoring and review to ensure they maintain the standards required and are removed where breaches are discovered, with relevant investigation agencies informed accordingly.

In parts of our Group that are involved in importing timber products we also maintain full 'Chain of Custody' registrations to ensure the products supplied have sound environmental provenance and there are no child labour or worker exploitation issues.

Our Organisational Response

As part of comprehensive pre-employment checks we ensure all prospective employees have indefinite leave to remain within the UK and appropriate permits to work, where these are required.

If we were to encounter any incidents where papers are not in order or there is a suspicion that the applicant may be subject to trafficking or modern slavery arrangements we will make alerts to the relevant enforcement agencies whilst offering support to the individuals concerned.

Each company within our Group structure has in place a comprehensive suite of Human Resources Policies (copies available on request) to protect workers and ensure fair and consistent treatment during their time of employment with Sovini companies.

All our organisational Policies are subject to an Equality Impact Assessments when they are being developed or reviewed and we will consider any implications they have in relation to the Modern Slavery Act compliance requirements.

We employ a 'Group Champion' to monitor our compliance arrangements and ensure we strive for continuous improvement in our response to modern slavery and trafficking issues, alongside responsibility for reporting on Corporate Social Responsibility actions.

If during the course of day-to-day working activities Carroll Group employees are made aware of a suspected incidence of modern slavery or human trafficking their immediate response will be to inform the Police on 101 or as a 999 call if victims are in immediate danger.

Where there are suspicions that companies Carroll Group members work with are involved in organised modern slavery or trafficking, these concerns will be forwarded on to the Group Champion who will coordinate a response to the National Referral Mechanism for advice and guidance.

Planned Actions

We will incorporate modern slavery and trafficking awareness into our existing, rolling programme of 'Safeguarding Training' that is provided to all front line Sovini staff, including signs of danger and mechanisms for reporting.

We will also raise awareness of the issues concerned via an information presentation to our Managers Forum throughout the Carroll Group and via an all staff publication 'E&D Focus On' which highlights a 'what you need to know' about relevant equalities issues.

The dangers of modern slavery and trafficking will also be incorporated into our risk registers and future resource planning and our management boards will receive annual progress reports on actions taken to prevent its occurrence.
